The world of gaming can be an exhilarating and exciting place. No other hobby or activity operates in a venue of such unbridled creativity or imagination. You can climb mountains, explore space, or save entire civilizations. Better yet, you can engage in adventures on your own, or surrounded by a community of equally dedicated individuals.

To be an Xbox Ambassador means having a passion to make gaming fun for everyone. Whether that's promoting a safe gaming environment everyone can enjoy, celebrating the uniqueness of everyone in the community, or advocating for responsible and accessible gaming, Xbox Ambassadors are focused on making Xbox more welcoming to all.

The Xbox Ambassador Mission

At the heart of the Xbox Ambassador Mission is the belief when everyone can plays, we all win.

To be an Xbox Ambassador means that you care, not only about your own individual games and gaming, but for your other gamers as well. It means being inclusive and welcoming of all kinds of gamers, from all walks of life and from all levels of skill or experience.

Xbox Ambassadors fulfill the program mission by embracing the tenets of the Xbox Ambassador Pledge, as well as completing specific program missions each new season. Xbox Ambassador missions can vary from sending positive messages to other gamers to sharing or creating content. Each of the missions is always centered on making gaming a more safe, enjoyable, and inclusive place.

To be an Xbox Ambassador means you know that even when you're playing single-player, that you're not just a single player within the wider gaming community. Building a positive and lasting community depends upon the actions of all of us.

For Xbox Ambassador SammieChaos, being an ambassador means "trying to empower everyone [and] make them feel like gaming is something that is for anyone. That no matter your background, your culture, whether you're abled or disabled, we want you to feel like you can always power your dreams". And for Xbox Ambassador SightlessKombat "Being an Xbox Ambassador means being positive and inclusive and open-minded about new perspectives".

Along the way, many of our ambassadors discover a rich community, make new friends and relationships, and find themselves gaming for something more than high scores or beaten bosses. But at the end of the day, it's a simple principle underlying the program. To be an Xbox Ambassador means making gaming fun for everyone.
